DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: in page 1, line 2, please provide updated information regarding U.S. Application Serial No. 09/995,897 when becomes available.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sarvazyan et al. (US 5,810,731 of record).

Sarvazyan teaches in col. 4, line 66 - col. 10, line 19 a method for detecting a physiological property of target tissue (col. 5, lines 1-35), comprising: noninvasively inducing a tissue displacement at a target tissue site by applying an ultrasound pulse; noninvasively acquiring data relating to an acoustic property of the target tissue site prior to and/or during and/or following the induction of tissue displacement; and relating the acquired data with a physiological property of the target tissue.

Sarvazyan further teaches that an acoustic property of the tissue site is acquired by administering a plurality of acoustic interrogation pulses to the target tissue site and collecting acoustic data from the target tissue site; wherein the data relates to at amplitude and phase of acoustic scatter and additionally comprising collecting acoustic data from the target tissue site using an ultrasound transducer operating in at least Doppler mode (see abstract).

Sarvazyan further teaches all other limitations of the claimed subject matter except for mentioning specifically that the target tissue is a myocardial tissue. However, it would have been obvious to an ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to recognize that Sarvazyan's tissue displacement detection method would be capable of detecting physiological properties of a myocardial tissue in order to detect any abnormalities within the myocardial tissue. Furthermore, since Sarvazyan's method is noninvasive and performs detection of abnormalities in brain tissue (see abstract) it would not impose any inherent danger by switching the tissue site from a brain tissue to a myocardial tissue.
